

International Symposium, Institute for Global Leadership

Women's Leadership and its Role for SDGs:

Approaches from Asian Civil Society and International Education

Today, leadership matters worldwide. More than before, global crises such as epidemics, environmental problems, and social division have indicated importance of thinking about eminent leadership. On the other hand, SDGs have contributed to the future development of the global community. Regardless of the degree of a country's development, each nation stands at the starting line in discussing the role of women's leadership and quality education in overcoming problems associated with the global crises. However, the concept of women's leadership is not yet well established. For this international symposium, we will examine how women's leadership is conceptualized, developed, and put into practice, and how it needs to be modified. The important role that female leaders play in various social issues where female leadership is truly needed in such Asian countries as Thailand, the Philippines, South Korea, and Japan can offer new insights for Asian women's leadership.

2020.12.19 SAT 15:00-17:30 (Japan Standard Time)

Zoom Webinar

※Simultaneous interpretation available (English-Japanese)

※Audience : Open to the public

Moderator : Rie OKAMURA (Project Lecturer, Ochanomizu University)

Opening Remarks : Yasuko SASAKI (Vice-President and Trustee of Ochanomizu University)

Speaker

Chanita RUKSPOLLMUANG
(Vice President,
Siam University)

Speaker

Weena GERA
(Associate Professor,
University of the Philippines Cebu)

Speaker

Makoto KOBAYASHI (Professor, Ochanomizu University)

Commentator

Sung-Nam CHO
(Professor Emeritus,
Ewha Womans University)

Organizer: Institute for Global Leadership, Research Organization for the Promotion of Global Women's Leadership, Ochanomizu University

More Information and Registration

E-mail: info-leader@cc.ocha.ac.jp
<https://www.cf.ocha.ac.jp/igl-en/>