Participation of the 10th International Semantic Web Conference

Kanako ONISHI

I attended the 10th International Semantic Web Conference (ISWC) held at Bonn, Germany from 23th to 27th October. The conference is the most prestigious conference related to Semantic Web technology. I have been doing research on developing a Semantic Web framework based technology, so it was so nice for me to have been able to attend the conference to study the recent trends of the technology and to learn new technologies in that area. Besides, I met many active researchers and could discuss a lot of issues with them. Everything related to the conference motivated me to further elaborate my research.
