

The study on Korean women's education in the transitional period of modernity

Kim Hayeon

The aim of this study is to trail back the history of girls' high school in the modern Korean girls' secondary education perspective, the condition and the educational contents in the women's education context at that time.

In this research, through the analysis on the history of each school, alumni magazines, reviews by the graduates and other records on girls' high schools, the condition and the education received by the female students had been examined.